INTRODUCTION.

ACADEMIC bibliography has for its sphere all printed matter that illustrates either:—

i. The history and development of a University as a corporate body; or

ii. The literary activity of her sons and daughters.

The Aberdeen Collections here attempted deal only with the first of these two divisions. The other—far wider in extent—forms part of a scheme that has been for some years on the programme of the New Spalding Club.

These Collections were suggested, and their preparation was greatly helped, by the existence of a bibliographical work of unusual excellence, the late Mr. J. P. Edmond's Aberdeen Printers, 1620-1736, which supplies information as to the whereabouts of many of the rarer Aberdeen books. Following Mr. Edmond, I have recognised a distinction between the books printed before and after 1736: "that date in a measure separating the antiquarian from the commercial periods in the history of Aberdeen printing". For the earlier books, which may claim, apart from their subject matter, a certain purely typographical interest, I have given fairly full transcripts of titlepages and collations of contents. For the later, only the essential parts of the titlepage have been reproduced, according to the recognised methods of cataloguing modern books: omissions being indicated by the insertion of dots (. . .), and the printer's name being noted, if of Aberdeen. In both classes I have endeavoured to see the volumes myself. The greater number are in the Aberdeen University Library; but the Advocates' Library, the Signet Library, the Libraries of St. Andrews, Glasgow and Edinburgh Universities, of Trinity College, Dublin, and Trinity College, Cambridge, the Mitchell Library, the Haigh Hall and Slains Castle and Powis House Libraries, the Aberdeen United Free Church College and Townhouse and Public Libraries, the Library of the Scottish Episcopal College, the Kirkwall Bibliotheck, and the Library of the Surgeon-General, Washington, have all been put under contribution, and I gratefully acknowledge the courtesy of their respective librarians. Mr. Kellas Johnstone has kindly examined for me several volumes in the British Museum, and Mr. Falconer Madan has supplied descriptions of a group of Aberdeen Theses preserved in the Bodleian Library.

Printed Theses are of great value both as illustrating the academic curriculum and as making good deficiencies in lists of graduates. Owing to the coexistence in the same town of two independent degree-granting bodies, University and King's College, and Marischal College and University (finally united in 1860), the number of Theses printed in or for Aberdeen must have greatly exceeded the number printed for any of the other Scottish Universities. We know of at least one Aberdeen Thesis printed in Edinburgh (1616). From the year 1622, when Raban began his work in Aberdeen, down to the date when the printing of Theses fell into disuse in Scotland, probably hardly a year passed without two volumes of Theses appearing from the local press. Of only about one-third of the total number has it been possible to find any trace.

The intimate connection thus fostered between the University and the printing press brought about the formal grant to James Brown, about the middle of the seventeenth century, of the title "Academiae typographus" or "Academiae typotheta". His successor John Forbes received from Marischal College a retaining fee of twenty pounds Scots per annum, in return for which he bound himself to print all public Theses at the rate of ten merks Scots for each sheet, the students furnishing the paper. The traditions of Brown and Forbes are worthily sustained by the Aberdeen University Press of to-day, the printers of the present volume.

In recent times the most characteristic literary product of academic Aberdeen has been the Class Record or History. In the older Universities of the United States such Histories have been published for a century, but none are known to exist in Edinburgh, Glasgow, or St.

Andrews. Class Records will be found in my Collections under the years from 1860 to 1906, varying in size from a tiny pamphlet of four pages to a full-grown quarto of four hundred.

It will be seen that in dealing with the earlier books I have adopted the method used by Mr. Madan in his Early Oxford Press. Thus an attempt is made to distinguish the capitals and lower case letters, the roman and italic founts, of the titlepage. The size of type used in the text is stated. The recto and verso of a leaf are indicated by the "superior" letters r and v: $C5^v$ standing for the verso of the fifth leaf of the sheet whose signature is C, while C5 includes both recto and verso. The title, unless otherwise described, is on the recto of the first leaf of the first sheet, and every page to which no contents are assigned is blank. The absence of vertical bars shows that the book has not been specially examined.

My list—which appropriately begins with the account of the founding of the University, written by its first principal, and ends with the publications of its Quatercentenary—is confessedly tentative and incomplete, and I shall be grateful for having my attention called to books or pamphlets overlooked. I should, however, explain that, in order to keep the list within bounds, certain classes of books have been intentionally excluded. Such are: works on general history, even though containing incidentally much matter directly bearing on the Aberdeen Universities, e.g., Spalding's Troubles or Wodrow's Collections; works of reference like the Dictionary of National Biography or Hew Scott's Fasti; professorial text-books, unless explicitly issued for use in Aberdeen University classes.

I am indebted to the Secretary of the Society for the loan of the block of Boece's titlepage, and to the Earl of Erroll for permission to reproduce in facsimile the contemporary Aberdeen binding of the dedication copy of the Thesis of 1706.

Boece, Hector. EPISCOPO | rum Murthlacen̄. & Aberdonen̄. Per He- | ctorem Boetium Vitæ. [Device no. 1 of Badius—all within arched border.]

[Colophon] Impreſſa ſunt hæc prelo Aſcenſiano Ad Idus | Maias Anno Salutis. M.D.XXII. | Deo Gratiæ.

4°. 7 in. A-E^8 = xxxviii + [2] leaves, pica roman. Title; A2, dedication to Bishop Gavin Dunbar; A3-E6, Episcoporum vitae; E7^r, Catalogus; E7^v, three sets of elegiac verses—Dominus Guilhelmus Elphynstonus Aberdonen̄. Episcopus & Collegii scholasticorū illic institutor ac patronus, collegium suum alloquitur (10 lines),—Respondet Collegium (6 lines),—Ioannes Vaus in laudem huius operis & Authoris (6 lines),—Colophon; E8 blank.

For Boece, the first principal, see Off. and Grad. of King's Coll. p. 23, and Dict. Nat. Biog. His Vitae contains a detailed estimate of Bishop Elphinstone and an account of the founding by him in Old Aberdeen of the College afterwards styled King's College. The work was reprinted by the Bannatyne Club (60 copies) in 1825, and by the New Spalding Club (with a translation by James Moir, LL.D.) in 1894. A metrical translation of the portion dealing with Elphinstone, written by Alexander Garden in 1619, was printed by the Hunterian Club in 1878. (Facsimile iv.)

[Colophon] Sub prelo Aſcenſiano Ad Idus Martias MDXXII.

4°. 8 in. a-m^8 = [96] leaves, pica and small pica roman. Title: verso, Iodocus Badius Ascensius studiosis Abredonensis Academiæ philosophis salutem . . .; a2, Ioannes Vaus artium bonarum professor studiosis Aberdonensium gymnasii nuper feliciter instituti scholasticis salutem . . .; a3-m7^r, Text, colophon at foot of last page; m7^v-8^r, Robbertus Gra Aberdonensis studiosae iuuentuti inibi commoranti salutem. . . .

The copy in Aberdeen University Library has lost the lower part of the title. An added piece of paper has the MS. note in the handwriting of Professor John Ker (infra, 1725): "Impr. Paris, 1522. Liber Coll. Regii Aberdonen. iterum compactus ac deauratus impensis Ioannis Ker Graecarum Literarum Professoris in Academia Regia". The margins are covered with notes, apparently in the handwriting of Vaus. No other copy is known to survive (Reichling's Bibliography of Alexander de Villa-Dei; Renouard's Bibliography of Badius). The letters from Badius, Vaus, and Gray (regent and mediciner: Off. and Grad. 35-50) are reprinted in Delisle's Josse Bade et Jean Vaus (1896, infra).

Vaus, John. Rudimenta puerorum in artem grammaticam per Joannem Vaus Scotum. Paris, Badius Ascensius, 1522.

Vaus was humanist at King's College (Dict. Nat. Biog.) A copy of this, the first edition of his Rudimenta, was in the possession of David Laing, and was sold at Sotheby's, 12th December, 1879, but has not been traced. Copious extracts from that copy are printed in James Grant's History of the Burgh Schools of Scotland (Lond. 1876), pp. 51-56.

The portions printed in gothic are mainly in Scots. This is a revised edition of the issue of 1522. These works by Vaus are given here partly as the first textbooks printed for Aberdeen students, and partly because the only copy of each now known is preserved in Aberdeen University Library. See Mr. Kellas Johnstone on Vaus, Scottish N. and Q. xii. 125.

Leech, David. King's College theses.

Joseph Robertson describes (Biogr. Abred. ii. 317) an imperfect copy of the Theses of 1637 in the possession of David Laing. "The part which remains consists of the 4 concluding pages of the 'Epist. Nuncupat.,' and of 24 pages of Theses. These are Theses logicæ (8); Theses morales (4), to which are added 'Aphorisma politicum' and 'Aphorisma œconomicum'; Theses physicæ (7). It is subscribed by seven students" [whose names identify the year: Off. and Grad. 187. The sixth is Jacobus Sharpius, the future archbishop.] The fragment is not mentioned in Laing's Sale Cat. ii. 222.

4°. 7 in. A-L^2. Pp. 44. Title with Aberdeen arms on verso: pp. 3-44, Generall Demands in small pica roman.

The six "Aberdeen Doctors" who signed the Demands were John Forbes of Corse, professor of divinity, King's Coll.; Alexander Scrogie, minister at Old Aberdeen; William Lesley, principal of King's Coll.; Robert Baron, professor of divinity, Marischal Coll.; James Sibbald and Alexander Ross, ministers at Aberdeen. The Covenanters were Alexander Henderson, David Dickson, and Andrew Cant. They had arrived in Aberdeen in July and the above edition was printed in that month.

The volume was twice reprinted in the same year, by Robert Young in Edinburgh, and by H.M. Printer, really printed at Young's London office.

For Fraser, see Ker's Fraserëides, 1732. Ker was M.A. Edinb., 1697, and classical master in the High School there; professor of Greek, King's Coll., 1717-34; of Humanity, Edinburgh, 1734-41 (Bower's Univ. Edin. ii. 296). His poem, Donaides, was read before the King's College faculty 29th March, 1725. The Notes are of much use for College history. There is commonly found bound up with Donaides, "A | POEM | In Imitation of | DONAIDES, | By DAVID MALLOCH, A.M.", 66 english lines on pp. 1-3 of a quarto sheet. Malloch (afterwards Mallet, Dict. Nat. Biog.) had the degree of M.A. conferred by King's College in 1726.
